While You Were Watching Oil, A Few Stocks Quietly Surged

Joe Shearrer, CPFA® is Vice President and Wealth Advisor at Fervent Wealth Management.

Lately, my family has been trying to make a more intentional effort to eat healthier and “cleaner.” That means more fresh fruits and vegetables, cooking at home more often, and paying closer attention to what actually goes into the food we buy. We’ve even started feeding our golden retriever, Finley, fresh food made with real ingredients that isn’t processed. Anyone who has tried this knows it can stretch the grocery budget a bit.

What’s interesting is how quickly global events can make that challenge even harder. Most people assume food prices are mostly driven by weather or fuel costs. But sometimes the real drivers are much further upstream, long before food ever reaches the grocery store shelf.

That brings us to an interesting market story unfolding this week. While most financial news has been focused on oil prices, another market has been quietly moving in a way that could eventually affect the cost of the food we eat.

The Hormuz crisis has a second-order story almost nobody is covering, and it could hit your grocery bill harder than the gas pump. Every financial news channel this week has had one word on its chyron: oil. And fair enough, crude prices spiking on a Strait of Hormuz closure is a genuine, consequential story.

However, while traders have been fixated on barrel prices, a quieter crisis has been unfolding in a market most investors never think about: fertilizer.

CF Industries Holdings, Inc, a nitrogen fertilizer producer based in Northbrook, Illinois, gained roughly 21% the past 30 days. Intrepid Potash added roughly 24%, hitting a fresh 52-week high. These aren’t household names, but the dynamics driving their surge are ones that will eventually reach every household in America.

The Hormuz–Harvest Connection

The Persian Gulf is not just the world’s gas station, it’s also the planet’s most concentrated source of crop nutrients. Qatar, Saudi Arabia, and their neighbors account for a massive share of global urea (the most common, high-nitrogen, and cost-effective solid fertilizer) and ammonia exports. When those shipments stop, the effect on agriculture is immediate and severe. Within 72 hours of the blockade being confirmed, global urea spot prices jumped more than $100 per ton.

For a corn farmer in Iowa or a soybean grower in Brazil, fertilizer represents 30–40% of total operating costs. A doubling of urea prices doesn’t just squeeze margins, it forces hard decisions about how much to apply this spring. Under-application this planting season means smaller harvests this fall. Smaller harvests mean higher food prices well into 2027.

Why North American Producers Win

This is where CF Industries’ structural advantage becomes clear. The company manufactures nitrogen fertilizer in North America using domestic natural gas, among the cheapest feedstock in the world. When Gulf-based competitors like Qatar Fertiliser Company (QAFCO) go dark, CF doesn’t just gain market share, it gains pricing power.

CF stock entered this year trading near its 52-week low. It is now approaching $118 per share as of March 11th, a move that reflects not just a short-term supply shock, but a potential multi-quarter repricing of North American fertilizer assets. Even if the Strait reopens this week, the logistical hangover (rerouted ships, idled Gulf plants, blown delivery contracts) will ripple through the 2026 growing season.

The Bigger Picture

There is a broader lesson here for investors conditioned to think about geopolitical risk in terms of energy alone. Modern supply chains are deeply interwoven. A closed strait doesn’t just cost you at the pump, it can cost you at the grocery checkout three seasons later. The investors who moved early on CF Industries this week understood that. Most did not.

So the next time my family is standing in the produce aisle trying to decide what to cook for dinner, I may be thinking about fertilizer plants, global shipping routes, and geopolitical tensions halfway around the world.

Because in today’s economy, the distance between global markets and your dinner plate is a lot shorter than most people realize.

Have a blessed week!
Joe Shearrer

4. I have determined that there is not a lien on this property, through a records inquiry with the Wyandotte County Register of Deeds.

5. Pursuant to K.S.A. 60-1002, an action may be brought by any person claiming title or interest in personal or real property, including oil and gas leases, mineral, or royalty interests, against any person who claims an estate of interest therein adverse to him or her, for the purpose of determining such adverse claim.

6. I reason I have been unable to obtain a title is: I have not been able to get ahold of Thomas Ruble. I have attempted reaching out to him, Paul Ruble and Hannah Ruble as well. I have called every number he has had, and gotten no response.

THEREFORE, petitioner request's judgment as follows:

That the Defendant and all persons who may be interested in the above-describe property, quieting title to 2911 w 45th Ave Kansas City Kansas 66103 in the name of the Plaintiff Cheyanna Lashay Seawood and in no other party; and for judgment against the defendant, and Ordering that the Title for Real Estate above be Quieted in favor of Plaintiff, and for said property; for the costs of this action to be assessed to the Petitioner and for other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.
